To whom it may concern,

It was great working with Vito over the summer of 2012.

When we worked on a web service prototype, I was impressed with his quickness and thoroughness – he always went the extra length testing and knew how to keep the user's experience in mind. He also had a lot of creative contributions and knew how to challenge assumptions.

Vito also worked on a realtime multiplayer Unity game prototype, where he really demonstrated his ability to learn (and code) fast. He set up the multiplayer backend, API connections and built a top-down shooter in Unity that we could play around the office. This prototype helped us make some technical decisions later on, so we are glad that we had Vito to help us out.

We hired Vito for another web application job in 2014 – this time for client work and in a different field, but we knew he would not have any problems adapting.

Vito is organized, knowledgeable, communicative, and fun to work with.

He would be a great addition to any team and we wish him great success in the future.

Kind regards,
